Description

The glorious Busworks was once a Victorian bus factory and timber yard. Just a moment's walk from Caledonian Road tube station, its bright and open warehouse, light industrial, studio and office spaces are bathed in natural light and have a chic, industrial feel, complete with original brick buildings and cobbled courtyard. The prime North London location is just one stop away from Kings Cross and is also home to The Pleasance Theatre, a world-famous 200-seat fringe theatre where acts like The Mighty Boosh honed their craft. So don't be surprised if you see a comedy legend on your way to work.

Location

Moments from Caledonian Road tube station, Busworks is easy to get to from across the capital. There are also great links to nearby Kings Cross St Pancras, including Eurostar connections as well as mainline trains to the rest of the country.
